Ornstein-Warendorf Teaching Assistantship for Dutch

University of Wisconsin-Madison, USA
Administered by the professors of Dutch in the Department of German

This Teaching Assistantship is used to support Dutch graduate students who come from the Netherlands to study at UW-Madison, and who are awarded a Teaching Assistantship to teach Dutch language classes in the Department of German. Students will teach one Dutch language course per semester. Students may be studying any subject and doing research on any subject. Students will receive tuition remission as part of their teaching assistant appointment.

Procedure:
Graduate Students are admitted through the department of their choice at the UW-Madison by meeting all admissions standards and application deadlines. http://www.grad.wisc.edu/education/admissions/

Candidates for this TA-ship must also submit, no later than December 20, 2009, a letter of application and three letters of recommendation to the professors of Dutch in the Department of German. These materials should directly address the candidate’s interest in, aptitude for, and relevant experience to teaching Dutch as a second language. Candidates also agree that their application file to the graduate program will be shared with the professors of Dutch. Candidates applying to departments of Foreign Languages or Second Language Acquisition may submit their graduate applications in lieu of the separate application, if their files provide the requested evidence. This TA-ship supports the teaching of Dutch, but can be combined with other forms of financial support from the University or from the student’s home department as a student pursues an advanced degree.
